Do you get flustered when someone asks you about your art practice? Do you get nervous about being asked to speak on demand about your work—be it for a large audience at an event or a one-on-one conversation in your studio? You don't need to be a wordsmith but finding the language and practicing talking about your art or even ideas behind your work can propel and even help define an artist's career. In this professional development workshop, artist Hiba Abdallah will walk us through the essentials of what goes into a meaningful artist talk and how to better structure our ideas

Agnes Etherington Art Centre, Modern Fuel Artist Run Centre and Union Gallery are pleased to co-present the 2021-2022 Professional Development Series. The series includes free workshops facilitated by arts professionals and local artists, geared towards emerging, mid-career and student artists and curators.

Participants will gain experiential learning opportunities, develop a toolkit of skills in preparing for a career in the arts and extend networks with Kingston's contemporary art communities.
